The report of the Committee of the Hongkong Chamber of Commerce, which lies before us, does not contain much calling for Shizoka, of haga-ken, now studying in St special comment. The principal feature of the report is the portion relating to the blockade of this port by Chinese Customs cruisers. This subject has been already dis. | Cosmopolitan Press, a new weekly paper, which | bay, urging this Chamber to co-operate with almost invariably the case when a wreck took cussed usque ad nauseam, but its importance has not diminished, neither has the evil yet be found in another column, been remedied. It usually takes so long to get a grievance thoroughly understood by the Home Government, that unless it is one steamer Yuen-tze-fee on the morning of the The question was brought before the Cham- consequently unfortunate vessels which might way in which he laboured for its benefit, that presses very intolerably upon a distant dependency the residents there often prefer to bear the annoyance, inconvenience, or loss, by Imperial interference, to secure its redress. But the blockade of Hongkong by so injurious to the trade of the port, sufficiently injured through other causes, and is traders bere, that they have at length appealed unto Cesar, hoping that the appeal will not prove a vain one. They have secured the support of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce, who have addressed the Secretary of State for the Colonies, and that of Sir RICHARD GRAVES MACDONNELL, who, thoroughly understanding the question, will not fail by and bye to urge its gravity on Lord CARNARVON. The memorial of the Hongkong Chamber of Commerce should. however, of itself engage the lively interest and attention of his Lordship, for the trade interests represented by it are so great and extensive that they ought at all times to secure any communication emanating from it a fair on the plaintiff in the late case of Fabregas v. Unfortunately, there is a great disposition in England to treat the affairs of the East with indifference and neglect; many members of Parliament are wretchedly ignorant of the resources, extent, and even locality of several of the smaller British dependencies, and hence regard memorials from from the Shun-pag, remarking that even if not typhoon which passed over this Colony in Septhem as troublesome hindrances to Imperial strictly in accordance with facts, it will be acanother stamp. matter. Another question of very great importance to British commerce has also engaged the attention of the Chamber during the past year. The protection of wreeked vessels on command. The latter, however, was obdurate; the coast of China is the subject referred to. the remonstrances of the Consul pass un heeded; redress seems unattainable. It is time some further and more energetic action was taken. Chinese officials promise fairly, procrastinate perpetually, and hope the while that the matter will soon be forgotten. And Europeans have become so weary of waiting for what seemed utterly hopeless, that they often suffer things to slip by, though without forgetting or forgiving the wrong. The protection of wrocked vessels is, however, a question of such especial concern to those interested in shipping that this case will not it is to be hoped, be allowed to slide out of Bishops. sight. The report draws notice to the fact that the occurrences which followed the disastrous typhoon of September last afford during the cool season. additional but unneeded proof of what is complained of Cargo boats, lighters, &c., which had broken or drifted away out of the harbour were subsequently found in adjacent waters, stripped of all that was valuable, or broken up, and some of the claims made in consequence are, it is averred, still unsettled. Surely it is about time they

A more accurate survey of the coast of China has long been wished for by those employed in navigating these seas, and the question of a re-survey bas been mooted for some time. This is very satisfactory, and we may now safely hope that this very important undertaking will be commenced ere long. It will doubtless, whonever made, give such additional knowledge of dangerous rocks, should, &c., as will go far to prevent shipwreck on these inhospitable shores.

The other matters dealt with in the report are of minor importance, though of considerable interest. It is mentioned that the committee have heard that it is probable that the ports of Annam on the Gulf of Tonquin will shortly be thrown open to foreign trade generally. There can be little question, we think, as to the advisability of sending a delegate to that country to ascertain its commercial capabilities, about which compara- ment to inquire into this subject having comtively so little is at present known, if the cost is not great. The establishment of a Chamber of Commerce at Amoy is noted with pleasure, as its influence and deliberations will, it is thought, " materially assist and benefit the common terests of foreign trade with China." this opinion we cordially concur, and doubt not that it will be found emulating the vigour and enterprise which most similar institutions are happily conspicuous for.

A COLLEGE FOR WOMEN. The Manchester Guardian's London correspondent writes: - A scheme for the education women has been undertaken by a private gentleman on a scale which I believe to be unprecedented in either this or any other country. After building a sanitarium for the insane at a cost, if remember rightly, of more than £150,000, Mr. Holloway, the maker of a well-known patent medicine, hagembarked upon a much greater and more important project. He has purchased for the cause of his death. He was so such loved some £25,000, the Mount Lee estate, at Egham, and on this he purposes to erect an enormous building, to be called a ladies university. More accurately described, it will be a college for the education of women. The institution is intended to accommodate 400 students, under at least Rector of Digbury, Devon. Though the scheme of government-like enough to unsettle the nerves of a thinoceros. many of the details-is not yet developed, I shall be accurate in stating that the control of the place will be vested in a board of governors; and it is hoped that with the assistance just referred to, the pupils' fees will be sufficient to make the place celf-supporting. It is intended that the instruction shall be of the highest kind that can be obtained, and the fees will be as low as that object will permit. There will be no effort to work the place for a money profit-Though the clerical element may not be entirely absent, it will be far less prominent than at Oxford or Cambridge, and the education will be almost exclusively secular. The scheme is not andicionally ripe for the selection of professors, but I understand that Mr. Fawcett, M.P., is one of Mr. Holloway's chief advisers in this undertaking so that those who are likely to avail themselves of its benefits may rest assured of a good choice of instructors. The size of the building will give your readers some idea of the magnitude of Mr. Holloway's undertaking. 'It will be built in the style of the French Renaissance, and consist of one great quadrangle 550 it by 400 ft., having projecting wings. The library, the large lecture-room, and the diningball will each be 100 ft, long by 40 ft, wide, and the chapel will be 140 ft. by 40 ft. and 60 ft. high. There will also be thirty-air class rooms, each 24 ft. by 20 ft., and three dormitories each 120 ft, by 40 ft. Each of the latter will be divided into single rooms 14 ft. by 12 ft. can only state the estimated cost of this great scheme in general terms, but I should think that it will be quite £200,000.
